

Stamps of Bannan Line

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
1	頂埔站 Dingpu		Stepping out of this station, passengers will see Dingpu Hi-Tech Industrial Park, accommodating mainly precision manufacturing, electronic, and computer enterprises. The nearby Yongfuyan (also known as Tucheng Zushi Temple), built in the Japanese colonial period, is a local religious center dedicated to the Qingshui Divine Ancestor.
2	永寧站 Yongning		Tucheng's Cheng-Tian Buddhist Monastery is a great place to enjoy Paulownia flowers. In April and May, when the New Taipei City Government stages the Paulownia Flower Festival in Tucheng, the shuttle buses depart from this station.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
3	土城站 Tucheng		Established during the Japanese colonial period, Tucheng Elementary School has cultivated numerous persons of outstanding abilities over the past 100 years. Citizen Garden plots are leased to members of the public to not only experience the pleasure of farming, but also to benefit various minority groups with donations of part of the harvest.
4	海山站 Haishan		The public artwork inside this station entitled “Pasture” offers passengers and local residents a place to take a rest. The nearby Gongguangou Hiking Trail is also a good place to see cherry blossoms.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
5	亞東醫院站 Far Eastern Hospital		Far Eastern Memorial Hospital is a key medical center for New Taipei City. The entrance of this station is designed to present the image of Banqiao, with an arch bridge shape signifying the “qiao” (bridge) in “Banqiao.” The nearby Nanzigou Bikeway has lush greenery along its length, providing people with refreshing pleasure.
6	府中站 Fuzhong		The Lin Family Mansion and Garden is Taiwan’s most complete example of classical garden-style architecture. The Commemorative Stone Inscription: Founding of Fangqiao School erected on the campus of Banqiao Elementary School was erected to honor the Lin family’s contribution during the Japanese colonial period in establishing public school facilities. The stone is now a municipal historic monument.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
7	板橋站 Banqiao		Accommodating Taipei Metro, High Speed Rail, regular railway, and coach services under one roof, Banqiao Station has New Taipei City Hall and a number of department stores nearby. Those who want to visit Banqiao 435 Art Zone can take a bus from this station.
8	新埔站 Xinpu		Located under the Minsheng Overpass next to this station, Banqiao Flower Market is one of the largest flower markets in New Taipei City. Providing local residents with vegetables, fruits, and even cooked foods, Xinpu Market is a key marketplace satisfying life's daily needs.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
9	江子翠站 Jiangzicui		In addition to its special Piano Key Plaza, the Music Park near this station also has other attractive facilities, including a fountain plaza and music sculptures. Huajiang Wharf is one of the stops for New Taipei City's Water Bus.
10	龍山寺站 Longshan Temple		The famous Manka Lungshan Temple is a municipal historic monument, and the nearby Huaxi Street Tourist Night Market has an international reputation. The heady aroma of different herbs wafts along old Herb Alley off Xichang Street. In the early years of Manka's development, many folk remedies were made using herbs prescribed by temples. The herbal tea sold here is today regarded as a natural health drink.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
11	西門站 Ximen	 The stamp for Ximen Station features a central illustration of the Zhongshan Hall building. To the left is the Red House building, and to the right is a guqin. Below the main illustration are silhouettes of people walking and a film reel. The text '西門站 Ximen' is written at the bottom.	A harmonious blend of old and new, Ximending provides youngsters with fashion shops, cinemas, and places for dating, and provides those who love Chinese classical music with Taipei Zhongshan Hall, and those who love cultural-arts events with The Red House.
12	台北車站 Taipei Main Station	 The stamp for Taipei Main Station shows a large, modern station building with a train platform and tracks. A tall skyscraper is visible in the background. The text '台北車站 Taipei Main Station' is written at the top left.	Bringing Taipei Metro, High Speed Rail, regular railway, and long-distance coach services under the same roof, Taipei Main Station is Taipei's most important transportation junction. The station itself is a bustling commercial center, and renowned neighboring department stores add to the buzz of prosperity.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
13	善導寺站 Shandao Temple		During the period of Japanese rule, Shandao Temple had the Japanese name Jodo-shu Taihoku Betsu-in. At nearby Huashan 1914 Creative Park, originally the Taipei Winery, many of the heritage factories and other buildings have been preserved, and many cultural-creative enterprises have set up operations since the transformation of the complex into a creative park.
14	忠孝新生站 Zhongxiao Xinsheng		In addition to National Taipei University of Technology, this station has two other well-known neighbors, Guanhua Digital Plaza and Jianguo Holiday Jade Market.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
15	忠孝復興站 Zhongxiao Fuxing		This station is surrounded by department stores and restaurants; the front and rear station areas are connected by the East Metro Mall, so that no heavy rains or burning sunlight will interfere with your window-shopping. This is indeed the most bustling of the Taipei Metro stations.
16	忠孝敦化站 Zhongxiao Dunhua		Lined with camphor trees and decorated with numerous modern public artworks, Dunhua S. Road not only is one of Taipei's most renowned streets, but also is the place where lovebirds meet up or do window shopping. A place filled with urban prosperity and public art.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
17	國父紀念館站 Sun Yat-Sen Memorial Hall		The “flying eaves” architecture and regular changing of the honor guard ceremony at National Dr. Sun Yat-sen Memorial Hall has attracted the attention and brought much praise from both domestic and overseas tourists.
18	市政府站 Taipei City Hall		This station, near Taipei City Hall, is directly connected to a transfer station for long-distance coaches and a major department-store complex, creating a quintessential modern metropolitan landscape of streams of pedestrians and vehicles intermixing.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
19	永春站 Yongchun		The local place name, “Yongchun Pi,” comes from the home area of the pioneer settlers who opened the land here, Yongchun in China’s Fujian province. The famous Yongchun Market is located on Hulin Street; the street is lined in the center and along both sides with vendors selling all sorts of food treats. It becomes especially busy when dusk comes.
20	後山埤站 Houshanpi		This station is close to Taipei’s largest marketplace for ready-made clothes, Wufenpu Commercial Zone, a grand emporium of over 1,000 apparel and accessory shops engaged in wholesale/retail.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
21	昆陽站 Kunyang		The public artwork “Revolving” at this station is a silhouette of a carousel made with many sets of stainless-steel sheets coated and then inlaid behind glazed-glass panels. Before the completion of the Joint Development Building, many railway fans used to stand on the flyover near MRT Nangang Depot to catch the moment when Electric Multiple Unit trains exited the underground tunnel here.
22	南港站 Nangang		Accommodating Taipei Metro, High Speed Rail, and regular railway services under one roof, this station also shoulders the responsibility of serving as a base for area prosperity. In addition, the multifunctional Extreme Sports Training Center offers citizens the chance to watch races and games as well as personally experience different extreme sports.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
23	南港展覽館站 Taipei Nangang Exhibition Center		Taiwan's biggest exhibition and conference center, Taipei World Trade Center Nangang Exhibition Hall has both upper- and lower-level exhibition facilities. This is also Taiwan's first exhibition center with the Green Building Label. The entrance of this station is designed to look like a giant clam holding a pearl.