

Stamps of Zonghe-Xinlu Line

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
1	南勢角站 Nanshijiao		Built in 1755 (Qing Dynasty), Hongludi Nanshan Fude Temple is well-known for answering prayers for success and wealth. Its conspicuous statue of the Earth God (Tudi Gong) is the largest in Taiwan. Staged by overseas Chinese residents originally from Myanmar, the traditional Songkran Festival is held annually on Huaxin Street to pray for blessings for the general public.
2	景安站 Jingan		The architectural style of the famous Yuantong Temple is pure Buddhist; it is a simulation of the Tang Dynasty style, with a hint of Japanese flavor. Its most distinctive feature is the statue of the Laughing Buddha at the temple gate, greeting visitors with a heartfelt smile.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
3	永安市場站 Yongan Market		The expansive 823 Memorial Park, which occupies 11 hectares of land, is praised as the “lungs of Yonghe and Zhonghe.” It has wide-ranging ecodiversity as well as leisure and recreation facilities. The next-door National Taiwan Library is Taiwan’s largest national library. Nearby Yongan Market is a wonderfully colorful traditional market.
4	頂溪站 Dingxi		The original Yonghe Wangxi Villa is now home to the Yang San Lang Art Museum, where at the entrance you are greeted by a bronze statue of Mr. Yang sitting and painting with extreme concentration. Yonghe has long been famous for such traditional snack delicacies as soybean milk, sesame seed cakes, and deep-fried fluffy dough sticks, attracting foodies from all over the world, who come to pamper their palates.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
5	古亭站 Guting		Taipei's first artistic and cultural space primarily focused on literature, the heritage Kishu An Forest of Literature has stood the test of time under the great blue sky, accompanied by giant trees. The four buildings, finished when Taiwan was under Japanese rule but now located on the campus of National Taiwan Normal University, give this area an arts and culture ambience.
6	東門站 Dongmen		Having undergone reconstruction and transformation, Dongmen Market still preserves its character of a conventional market. Through the exit, passengers can reach Yongkang Street, with an international reputation for traditional xiaolongbao dumplings and beef noodles.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
7	忠孝新生站 Zhongxiao Xinsheng		In addition to National Taipei University of Technology, this station has two other well-known neighbors, Guanhua Digital Plaza and Jianguo Holiday Jade Market.
8	松江南京站 Songjiang Nanjing		Known as “Women’s Street” in days gone by, Sun Square brims with dazzling arrays of fashion commodities. The nearby Miniatures Museum of Taiwan and Suho Memorial Paper Museum also give this area a touch of cultural flavor.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
9	行天宮站 Xingtian Temple		Hsing Tian Kong, also known as Enzhugong Temple (Wenzhugongmiu), is one of the temples in northern Taiwan with the most numerous followers. The underpass next to it is the famous “Fortune-Telling Street.” People from all over the world come not only to pay their respects or use the “recalling a frightened soul” service, but also to look for life answers and gain a peek at their destinies.
10	中山國小站 Zhongshan Elementary School		Take a walk around Qingguang Commercial Zone and you will first see the historic Church of True Light. If you continue into Taipei Expo Park, you will see the south Fujian-style Lin An Tai Historical House & Museum complex; its elegantly designed Sueh Yueh Hall adds a distinctive architectural flavor for tourists to explore.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
11	民權西路站 Minquan W. Rd.	 The stamp is a black and white line drawing enclosed in a jagged, starburst-like border. At the top, it says '民權西路站' and 'Minquan W. Rd.' with a stylized logo. Below the text, there are trees on the left, a wedding gown on a mannequin in the center, and a couple walking on the right. In the background, there is a building with a glass roof.	Stepping out of this station, you will find yourself surrounded by dazzling wedding gowns, for you have just entered one of Taipei’s two famous Wedding Salon Streets, where you can see a grand array of resplendent gowns through display windows sparkling in the bright sunlight. This street is also known as the Green Boulevard for its many trees. Featuring a tempered-glass roof, the station itself has also become a local landmark.
12	大橋頭站 Daqiaotou	 The stamp is a golden-yellow line drawing enclosed in a rounded rectangular border. At the top, it says '大橋頭站' and 'Daqiaotou' with a stylized logo. Below the text, there is a traditional multi-story building on the left, a junk boat on the water in the center, and three people walking on the right.	In the early days when Tamsui Port began operating, Dadaocheng became the center of logistics for the flourishing Taipei Basin. Today, the scale mock-up of an old-time “junk” is a wharf landmark. Walk along Dihua Street to see the architectural beauty of the old buildings and the first-rate craftsmanship practiced in the traditional shops.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
13	台北橋站 Taipei Bridge		The old photo of Taipei Bridge displayed inside this station records the history of Daqiao. The bridge was constructed of wood in the Qing Dynasty and Japanese colonial period, and then rebuilt using iron. The “Iron Bridge Sunset” at that time was one of Taipei’s Eight Scenic Highlights. The nearby Zhongxiao Wharf is one of the stops for the New Taipei City Government’s Water Bus.
14	菜寮站 Cailiao		Located next to this station, Zhongshan Art Park is beautified with the large-scale artworks “Dingyi Sanchong” and “Rhythm Sanchong.” Moreover, the nearby New Taipei City Sanchong Stadium offers local residents a place for leisure and sports.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
15	三重站 Sanchong		Located near Sanchong Station, Sweet Ripple Park has many sweet and colorful installation artworks. Sweetheart couples and parents/children love to visit the park at night to enjoy the wonderful lighting of the New Taipei City Bridge.
16	先嗇宮站 Xianse Temple		The municipal historic monument Xianse Temple was originally called the “Emperor of the Five Grains Temple (Wuguxiandi Miao)” or “King of the Five Grains Temple” (Wuguwang Miao) because the legendary ruler Shennong is enshrined here, said to bless and protect agricultural harvests and engage in divine healing. Over 200 years old, this is the oldest temple in Sanchong District.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
17	頭前庄站 Touqianzhuang		Xinzhuang District has many temples that have been designated official historic monuments. One of these, Baoyuan Temple near Touqianzhuang Station, is known for its “Fire-Walking Ritual,” which has been recognized by New Taipei City’s Cultural Affairs Department as a key local cultural asset. This ritual is a quintessential local folk activity.
18	新莊站 Xinzhuang		Having undergone over 300 years of history, the Old Street presents the epitome of Taiwan’s development via its historic monuments, temples, and various 100-year-old shops. The area’s old bell and drum factory provides a world-renowned Taiwan percussion group with its drums. The nearby Xinzhuang Gymnasium hosts many international competitions; large Xinzhuang Sports Park brims with ornamental flowers and trees.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
19	輔大站 Fu Jen University		Striving for “Truth, Goodness, Beauty, and Sanctity,” Fu Jen Catholic University was the first Catholic university in Taiwan. There are many beautiful sights around the campus, of which Chung Mei Auditorium, an imitation of the large-scale pillar-free Roman Colosseum, is especially noteworthy.
20	丹鳳站 Danfeng		The name “Danfeng” comes from the old local saying “Two Phoenixes Facing the Peony.” The two phoenixes are Xinzhuang’s Mt. Shibafenkeng and Mt. Baipao, which stand on either side of Mt. Mudanxin, the peony. Xinzhuang Youth Park is also known by locals as Mudanxin Ecological Park.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
21	迴龍站 Huilong		This station is said to be on the site of a “Dragon’s Den”; hence the name “Huilong” (coiled dragon). The old Lo-Sheng Sanatorium and Hospital is a designated “Cultural Landscape & Historic Building,” and has been selected by the Executive Yuan as a Taiwan Potential World Heritage Site.
22	三重國小站 Sanchong Elementary School		This station was designed as a depiction of egrets flying over an ocean of flowers. Sanchong Elementary School is over 100 years old. The famous Sanhe Night Market offers many tasty old-time snack delicacies.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
23	三和國中站 Sanhe Junior High School		Also known as the “cat temple” because of the many stray cats staff have taken in, Yitian Temple draws many cat lovers. In addition to its variety of artistic man-made landscapes, the nearby Yongsheng Park also presents a stunning floral tapestry during the flowering season.
24	徐匯中學站 St. Ignatius High School		An attractive work of installation art featuring flying egrets is at the entrance of the station. St. Ignatius High School is a Catholic school with a long history. Nearby Bihua Textile Street is a fabric wholesale center.

No.	Station	Station Stamp	Introduction
25	三民高中站 Sanmin Senior High School		Standing still for over 100 years, Yonglian Temple has become the center for local activities and livelihood. In addition to Luzhou Temple Commercial District, this area is also famous for serving traditional snacks; the mouth-watering qiezai noodles especially.
26	蘆洲站 Luzhou		“Luzhou” got its name from a sandbank (Shazhou) full of reeds (Luwei). At Luzhou Station is a beautiful work of public art showcasing the beauty of the light and shadow inside the station. Water-fun activities are often staged on the Breeze Canal outside the station. Off in the distance, the Luzhou Lee Mansion is an important historic monument done in the southern Fujian architectural style.