To consolidate the general consensus of fighting corruption, Taipei City Government Ethics Department, by cooperating with Taipei Astronomical Museum, the anti-corruption volunteers will be advocating and servicing the integrity-related activities in the museum from 1:30 p.m. to 4:40 p.m. every Friday and Saturday, started from May 10 to September 28, 2019. Visitors are able to scan QRcode with cellphones, access the web page of online riddle and attain the limited-edition prize, thereby gaining knowledge about tasks and news lead of integrity and ethics, hence encouraged to later report the illicit conducts upon encountering.

The online riddle is customized for the widely popular Lantern Festival Online Riddle, demonstrated by the Ethics Department. Families are welcome to visit the Integrity Station on the first floor lobby of Taipei Astronomical Museum, where they are to assist their children in scanning the QRcode to access the web page of online riddle. Answering 3 puzzles out of 9 correctly and forming a linear line wins the prize. One can also download the "COCOAR2" App to scan the AR image of the Taipei Integrity Mythological Icon "Chi Baobao", taking a picture with the frame of the campus integrity advocacy van can redeem a limited-edition souvenir which there are only 30 available each day.

The integrity advocacy campus van, provided by Agency Against Corruption, has been touring around the 8 events in Taipei City, New Taipei City, Taoyuan City, Taichung City, Tainan City, Kaohsiung City, Taitung

County and Penghu County since April 2019, Director of Taipei City Government Ethics Department, Shen Feng Liang said. The course of the tour combines with the resources of campus integrity and ethics advocacy activities of all government ethics institutes and feat exhibitions.

From August 29, the van will be stationed in Taipei to promote the Children's Month of Ethics event. Moreover, in order to optimize the benefits of events, the activities will be moved to the Taipei Astronomical Museum Integrity and Ethics station later this year, for all to experience the educational integrity tournaments and games, while learning the key governing performances in Taipei. The interaction will hopefully rid public the stereotype and thus, dullness of ethics governance.

The integrity and ethics brochures will be distributed in the Integrity Station, to encourage a nationwide supervision of municipal administration, said by the Taipei City Government Ethics Department. The brochures contain Anti-Corruption information and Anti-Malfeasance Informant Rewards Regulation of Taipei City, addressing the public every drastic amendment such as lowering the threshold of dispersing rewards and increasing number of criminal counts that can later lead to rewards if promptly reported to authorities. The App is also available to the public, by simply scanning the page of "Anti-Corruption and Anti-Malfeasance Informant Rewards" on the brochure to gain the up-to-date information of the aforementioned regulation. The brochures are to be distributed in the Integrity Station of Taipei Astronomical Museum and the other two Integrity Stations, Taipei Yuanshan Expo Park and Xinyi Public Assembly Hall, from 1:30 p.m. to 4:40 p.m, every Friday to Saturday.
