

Public Art on the Luzhou Line

Luzhou Station

★ "Dancing Feathers Ascending in the Wind" at the Luzhou Station won "The Best Creativity Award" of the Fourth Public Arts Awards

Dancing Feathers Ascending in the Wind

Artist: Ray King (U.S.A)

Completion Date: May 2010

Medium: Dichroic glass, stainless steel, cable

Dimensions (cm):

H829 x L260 x D300, H724 x L260 x D300

Location: Concourse

Selection Method: Invitational competition

Cost: NT$12,000,000

Dancing Feathers is an ethereal work of art that uses the natural phenomena of light as it interacts with the optics of glass as an art medium. The forms of the feathers dynamically project and reflect colors into the concourse, transforming it into a public performance space of changing light patterns. Dancing Feathers is constructed, as in nature, with a lightweight hollow structure and changing color surfaces. This artwork won "The Best Creativity Award" at the Fourth Public Arts Awards in 2014.

