| 1   | 新北產業園區站New Taipei Industrial Park |   | New Taipei Industrial Park, previously known as Wugu Industrial Zone, is located in Wugu and Xinzhuang Districts. Intersected with Airport MRT, the appearance of this station is designed to resemble the shape of an airplane to symbolize a free bird soaring in the sky.  |
| 2   | 幸福站Xingfu                         |  | Close to Zhonggang Main Drainage Lakeside Trail, this station also stands near Rainbow Plaza, where colorful rainbows can be seen shimmering through the main drainage. This is not only a featured scenic attraction for family trips, but also a check-in spot for love birds and married couples to take beautiful pictures. Xingfu Station invites everyone to stop by for a moment of happiness. |

|-----|------------------------------------|---|---|
| 3   | 頭前庄站Touqianzhuang       |   | Xinzhuang District has many temples that have been designated official historic monuments. One of these, Baoyuan Temple near Touqianzhuang Station, is known for its “Fire-Walking Ritual,” which has been recognized by New Taipei City’s Cultural Affairs Department as a key local cultural asset. This ritual is a quintessential local folk activity.                     |
| 4   | 新埔民生站XinpuMinsheng |  | Located near Xinpu Minsheng Station, the New Taipei City Arts Center houses various spatial layouts, which include a performance hall, exhibition rooms, a city library and Huang Guei-Li Memorial Hall, providing an event venue for arts and culture such as related exhibitions, performances or teaching activities held for neighboring elementary schools and residents. |

|-----|----------------|---|--|
| 5   | 板橋站Banqiao |   | Accommodating Taipei Metro, High Speed Rail, regular railway, and coach services under one roof, Banqiao Station has New Taipei City Hall and a number of department stores nearby. Those who want to visit Banqiao 435 Art Zone can take a bus from this station.  |
| 6   | 板新站Banxin  |  | Situated close to Banqiao Broadcast Studio and New Taipei City Sports Museum, Banxin Station embraces not only the municipal heritage and green outdoors of Banqiao Broadcast Studio, but also the zealous and cultural ambience from exhibitions and sports lessons at the sports museum. Such combination has given the MRT station a unique character. |

| No. | Station                   | Station Stamp   | Introduction  |
| 7   | 中 原 站Zhongyuan |   | Zhongyuan Station features split tracks with two split platforms stacked horizontally at different levels, three and five levels above ground respectively. The parallel interchange of trains marks the one-of-a-kind landscape of this station.  |
| 8   | 橋 和 站Qiaohe    |  | This station is located near the Farglory Left Bank Bridge, the first cross-embankment scenic bridge at New Taipei City. The shape of a sailboat expresses the concept of being close to water and symbolizes the idea to "hoist the sails and voyage to the future." Local residents are encouraged to bike directly from the community to the riverbank. The distance between human and water is thus shortened. |

| No. | Station               | Station Stamp   | Introduction  |
|-----|-----------------------|---|---|
| 9   | 中和站Zhonghe |   | Zhonghe Station is close to the Huazhong Bridge of New Taipei City. The Dinosaur Park under the bridge features the cute version of Jurassic Park as well as 3D painted dinosaurs on the bridge piers with special effects so vivid that children just can't have enough! Not far away is the Zhonghe kiln, a witness to the kilning history of Zhonghe. |
| 10  | 景安站Jingan  |  | The architectural style of the famous Yuantong Temple is pure Buddhist; it is a simulation of the Tang Dynasty style, with a hint of Japanese flavor. Its most distinctive feature is the statue of the Laughing Buddha at the temple gate, greeting visitors with a heartfelt smile.  |

|-----|-------------------------------|---|--|
| 11  | 景平站Jingping        |   | As Jingping Station is situated above Provincial Highway 64, surrounded by tall buildings and heavy traffic, it is built as an elevated MRT station so as to alleviate noisy and crowded traffic in the city.   |
| 12  | 秀朗橋站Xiulang Bridge |  | The design of this station under the Xiulang Bridge reproduces the eight old scenes of Zhonghe: Evening Commuter Boats at Jian-Shan, Strange Stone on Bihu Mountain, Bell Chimes of Fuhe Temple, Overlooking the Distance from Yuanshan, Shimen Melody, Boating under the Moonlight at Wang Creek, Evening Tide at Yonghe and Sweet Spring of Tanqian. Passing cyclists under the bridge can now have more historical scenery to enjoy. |

| 14  | 大坪林站Dapinglin  |  The stamp is a circular yellow illustration. At the top, it features the station name in Chinese '大坪林站' and English 'Dapinglin' next to a stylized eye logo. Below the text, there is a depiction of a traditional Chinese building with a tiled roof, surrounded by trees and a river. A modern building is visible in the background, illustrating the contrast between old and new architecture. | This MRT Joint Development Building is a meticulously structured green building where the Circular Line connects with the Songshan-Xindian Line. If you walk alongside the Jingmei River, you will find Liu's Wenjitang, where the traditional architectural characteristics have been preserved, contrasting with the modern building you have just exited. |
